Dr. Wm. B. Lapham's "With Pen and Pencil at Mount Desert" will be issued about the first of May. The engraving will be rich and attractive.

The Telephone man has purchased of F. H. Mitchell the two-story building on the south side of Main street, next below Holt's block, and is fitting it up for his printing office. They will move into their new quarters the last of April. Mr. Thompson, of the Home Breeders' Monthly, will put in material for doing his own printing, which has heretofore been done on the Telephone presses.

Shakespeare makes one of his characters say "It is not in mortals to command success, but we'll do more than e'er we serve it." St. Jacob's Oil has commanded success, and the voice of the people is that it deserves it, and that is the greatest praise ever on earth.

The Gorham Mountaineer has just celebrated its tenth birthday.

A counterfeit five dollar bill on the Central National Bank of New Norfolk, Conn., is in circulation. The counterfeit charter number is 401 and the genuine is 3942.

The Fountain of Life is the blood, which can be purified by the use of the true "R. P." Arrowed Blitters.

The elaborate offices of the Massachusetts Protective Liquor Dealers' Association proposes what is, in effect, a two-fold boycott; first, against liquor dealers who may not be disposed to join the fraternity, and secondly, against the community at large. The effect is to make the entire trade "solid" in the defence of the law-breaking portion of it. The new organization proposes to prove the accusation that all dealers are alike in their attitude toward the law true by refusing upon all dealers for the support of those who break the law, thereby putting all alike in the category of law breakers. And if any dealer who pretends to keep the law objects to paying assessments in behalf of those who violate the law, he will be applied to him. The organization is to find a further use in controlling political action.—Boston Journal.

Cough preparations are used in every household, and hence the necessity for a pure and safe remedy. Red Star Cough Cure, the new medicinal discovery, contains neither morphin nor opium, and chemists, physicians and Health Boards endorse it. 25 cents.

We regret to be compelled to say that the outlook for the establishment of a shoe factory in Bridgton is far less promising than a week ago. Indeed so far as Mr. Green is concerned, it is an open secret that he has practically decided not to undertake the venture, and has asked the committee to release him from the contract agreed upon which involved his establishment of a great shoe factory in Bridgton. While it is not necessary to advise to enter into details, it is just to say that the final and unfavorable decision of Mr. Green is a matter of regret and disconcert to the business plans and the uncertainties as to the future growing out of the great labor agitation.—Bridgton News.

I had the rheumatism in my left shoulder for two years, and in three days after using Ashby's the pain was gone. I had the scabies in my right leg all winter, and the medicine has driven it all away also. Chas. Adams, North Adams, Mass.

J. Berry has been commissioned as postmaster at Webb's Mills.

Among all the scholars and scholars on the market Chubb & Co.'s "Arm & Hammer Brand" is undoubtedly the best and cheapest.

The reduction of the public debt in March was about $14,000,000.

There is a crusade in Massachusetts that the employment of women in business pursuits, on the absurd ground that they are usurping the rights and privileges of men.

The Boston Journal says: Henry A. Small, dealer in general merchandise, Randolph Center, is trying to come up with his creditors at 25 cents on the dollar. He is reported to have liabilities of $8000. His assets consist of $1500 in stock and $2000 in book accounts, a large number of which are considered bad.

For horses, Section, harness and all pain and soreness of flesh, the grand household remedy is Dr. Thomas' Pain Expeller. It will cure you the genuine.

The floods in the South and West increase in severity. Throughout Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky and Georgia, the story is the same of widespread destruction.

Don't tamperize with Pills—Cintments, ointments and eye tinctures are of little or no use. "ANAKERIS" gives instant relief, and is the only certain cure for all eye troubles. Get a bottle sent free. Address "ANAKERIS," Box 414, New York.

The firm of A. Cushman & Co., has inaugurated a system of profit-sharing with its 750 employees, which is very popular with the workmen. The firm will pay as high wages as their competitors and then divide among the help the net profits of the business in the ratio of what labor contributes to the cost of the shoe. The management will be in the firm and all proceeds will be in the ratio of what labor contributes after paying all ordinary expenses and proper salaries to the management; deducting a reasonable amount for year wear and tear and interest on plant, with a reserve fund for losses.

The warmer weather often has a depressing and debilitating effect. Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes all languor and lassitude.

Dr. J. Lenville Bennett, formerly of Bridgton but for some eight years in New York, has just returned to his home in Bridgton for a vacation, and to avoid the unhealthy spring weather of this latitude, he will be in attendance as a witness, at the Exsorial at Paris, he took cold, and his health has since been poor. His duties as a witness are very arduous, and he has won a high reputation as a safe, faithful and skillful practitioner. Dr. Charles E. Wilson, formerly of Oxford, takes his place. Dr. Wilson was formerly an employee at the ADVERTISER office.

Rev. Mrs. Scott, Warton, Ont., states: "After being inefficiently treated by seven or eight different doctors for several years, I was cured by Burdock Blood Bitters." Write for proof.

James McLauchlin, a soldier of the war of 1812, died at East Freyburg on the 15th inst., aged 90 years and five days. Four other brothers enlisted and served with him in that war. Jacob died during the war; Robert lived to the age of 88; Abraham to the age of 82; and Jeremiah reached the great age of his brother who has just passed away. 90 years. They were all born in Hiram. Mrs. McLauchlin, wife of James, reached the advanced age of 67 years; she has seven daughters, six of whom lived to the great age of nearly 80 years. Is not this family of remarkable longevity?

An exchange well says: "If you want a good local paper make it a point to call on the editor and tell him of the local happenings, or, if you cannot do that, write to him and tell him the facts. Remember that the editor cannot be everywhere present. He cannot be in the office writing or clipping, setting type, making up forms, etc., and at the same time he will be surprised to see how much better their paper will be. Suppose you try it." If you do be sure and sign your name otherwise the letter would go in the waste-basket.

A Public Benefaction.

How to laudatory thing is it is done in Troy, N.Y., has been kept a secret long enough; it can not be made to do in every family. Some people have been found to say good word for bad language; but this is not out of love of profanity, but out of love of euphemism. The vulgar language is so strong, so swarming, so analogous to that of epidemic speaking, and that those who are too lazy to try of the right word to express their meaning, drop, out of sheer carelessness, in the easy aliphabet sign of the times, the easy "F" word, which is not more the ignorant, who might by some possibility be supposed not to know the correct term to employ in order to express strong feeling, that are guilty of improper language, than the more cultured and educated are supposed to prevail. Men who have been to the university, and possibly have come out as first-class students, may be found to talk short out loud, or to swear when swearing unhappily supplies. In such cases, perhaps, it may be urged, excuse that severe academic training, which has made them so much of the shock of brain power that the disposure of the appropriate and seemingly difficult to apply in any case is as difficult as these lights of learning as for ploughed fields. But the excuse may be something in this excuse. Intellectual laziness is accountable for good deal of the hasty indelicacy as for the language which is current in the streets and in the houses, and in the rooms that he really has time to be particular about his phrase. This might be accepted as a legitimate if it could be shown that "strong language" is all that is necessary in such cases, however, is not, and the whole thing is a matter of habit. It begins, perhaps, with intellectual laziness, or the desire to appear on a par with the swearing word of boys, and it continues in the variety of imitative, very often simply out of emulation, faculty. Possibly the "swearing" of their school times is a fine thing in the gene of crickets "infernally" as they are called, and the desire to imitate and to continue to furnish their own conversation with the good old imagery borrowed from the lower gods. The popular desire of emphasis in speech must be another factor. The "F" word, it is all manners to say. The habit, whatever be its origin, deplorable one, and cannot be legitimately defended by anybody.

There are many features about well that would give it an extraordinary notoriety, and that would emphasize reverence that clings to the wells of the Holywell. It was named Thrythwell Village of the Well. It is a truly venerable well, throwing up, at its thirty-two fathoms of singularity, light and sparkling water, which is highly precious as quinquages fully as the waters of Harrow, Leamington, Buxton and Bath. The species of scented moss found in the well is said by Lingers to be the same as that which is found in the present day it has been prescribed by physicians who are not believers in supernatural. Possessing these things it is not extraordinary that persons should be drawn to the well, and by using the water, they may be cured, too, that persons honestly think they have been cured, for the most eminent physicians have told us that the water of the Holywell is the cause of those who faith in certain remedies, often about a cure. Then follows the page of notoriety, viz., exaggeration. I self believed in the deity after the above, and I have seen the water being used under one for a continuous. The man who was said to vomit "three black crows" was parted with something "Black crows," and the recent day, I have shown what number, many tongues, will say. The acts of ordinary cures, then, would be exaggerated into miracles, and as easy to believe one miracle as another. The water of the Holywell would be accepted, nothing dicte, even to the zinnopical dreamed (perhaps honestly even a fervid and fantastic escape.

The oleiferous molecule must be incomprehensibly small, we are told the particles one smuck laid, in a radius of six inches, disengaged in one day. No doubt, if the oleiferous molecule could enable the human eye to see these atoms; yet the organs have the sensitives to detect the same particles. The oleiferous molecule undergoes absolutely no diminution of weight. A single drop of pure of tyne, ground down with sugar and sugar and a little oil, will be found to be in millions of gallons of water. Halter kept in water, papers performed with water.

oleiferous molecule sensitive to the action of ammonia. The oleiferous molecule is not destroyed by fire. Boyle has observed that the oleiferous molecule is not destroyed by fire. Boyle has observed that the oleiferous molecule is not destroyed by fire.

The Lancet regards the inclusion of fruit in ordinary diet as one of the most salutary tendencies of modern management in our day. The sugar and saccharine components of fruit, while they are not equal in actual force to the more solid ingredients of meat and fat, are similarly balanced in their own degree and have the advantage of greater digestibility.

Much may be resigned by the far indeed from having resigned and the little trials which pass by all the world, are often the our sincerity, and may be the to subdue our perverse inclination.
